Wheat, Stock Prices Soar

WINNIPEG, Nov. 4 (C. P.) —
Apparently because of fear heavy Italian purchase of Argentine wheat would create a shortage in England, United Kingdom millers hastily replenished their bins with Canadian varieties today.

In doing so, they sharply boosted the price of futures on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Net gains of 2 1/4 to 1 7/8 cents were registered, November closing an active session at $1.08 7/8, December $1.06 1/4 and May $1.07
3/8. Preclosing profit-taking pared the day's exorbitant gains of nearly 3 cents.

— A NOVEL BY —

That was Starr Ellison's deadly fascination—the thousand and one contradictions in her volatile personality that made Michael Fairbourne certain that it had been nothing less than inspiration which had led him to concoct that story about her having Egyptian princess ancestry. He was probably right, without having known it, except by inspiration. If truth were told, she probably had come straight down in a direct line from the sirens of all sirens. It would not have been hard to persuade Michael that Cleopatra herself had sent along her blood—and her allure—through the centuries to the girl-woman who called herself Starr Ellison.

Michael stared down the long room at Lance Marlowe's guests. In the group clustered near the flickering fire on the hearth Starr was almost hidden by the men who surrounded her. Moths, Stephanie called them. And Michael Fairbourne realized suddenly, with an attempt at mental castigation, that he was no better than the rest. He felt an uncontrollable impulse to follow wherever she went. But he had no intention of joining that crowd. He would not. At least he could keep his self-respect to that extent. So he remained on the fringe, a dark and angry mood, watching.

The group parted when someone called for fresh cocktails, and Michael saw Starr. Her exotic beauty was like a flame. She was wearing a startling costume this day—which was Russian in effect. It was all black and scarlet with little bands of fur around the throat. She carried a ridiculous little black muff of the same astrakhan that appeared to serve her for gesturing purposes, as well as the fan for a Spanish woman, or any of the well known props. Her dusky cloud of hair, beneath a tiny scarlet hat, fell almost to her shoulders.

No one but Starr Ellison would have dared wear an outfit like that, and she knew it. Her clothes were as breath-taking as her conduct. She long since had got out of hand with Michael who at first had considered it his duty to take her shopping; Starr had ideas of her own, and she had not hesitated to let him know it. He could pay the bill—and did—but hers was the selection.

Her eyes met Michael's, and they held each other's for a strange, long moment. The girl who was the toast of a city, and the man who had made her what she was. They had not spoken to each other intimately since their flare-up in the ballroom at Pierre's the night of Starr's debut, just about two weeks before. No longer did Michael come to the penthouse apartment and the living room with the mushrabiye windows for consultations or intimate chat. That was all over. Their meetings since the party had been brief and few, and those had been tinged with brittle sarcasm and deadly barbs of caustic wit. Their defiance against each other left steel daggers always drawn, just beneath the surface. Not even an armed truce.

That one long look from gray eyes to black. . . Suddenly Starr left her little group of satellites. A freakish impulse led her to Michael. A provocative slant of those deep-fringed eyes swept the tall, stern-faced man. She stood in front of him, her black eyes lifted to his face. She said suddenly:

"You're elected to take me home, Has—Michael!"

A stiffness crept over his big frame.

"May I ask why?" he said, his tone itself challenging.

Starr said insolently: "Because you're the most miserable-looking man present, and you need thawing out." She spread her hands and laughed. "Besides, everybody else is tight, and some of them might have the idea they could drive."

When he did not reply directly, the imperious "Play-Girl" commanded: "Hurry! I've barely enough time to get home and slip into a bath and some sort of a dress for Ted Ranger's party at the Mayfair tonight."

Neither of them had noticed Lance Marlowe saunter up, but the ever-present Lance suggested in his smooth voice:

"Why go home? You can dress here, Starr."

A ripple of amusement greeted his words. Starr did not seem to mind the amusement. She favored Lance with one of her mysterious smiles.

DO THIS when you wake up with a Headache
ENJOY RELIEF BEFORE YOU'VE FINISHED DRESSING

When you wake up with a headache, do this: Take two quick-dissolving "ASPIRIN" tablets with a little water. By the time you've finished dressing, nine chances in ten, you'll feel relief coming. "Aspirin" provides this quick relief because it is rated among the quickest methods for relief science has yet discovered. "Aspirin" tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company, Limited, of Windsor, Ontario. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

Demand and Get—ASPIRIN
LOOK FOR THE BAYER CROSS

It might have meant yes—or no—or perhaps.

Michael quivered suddenly with black rage. He had not missed the obvious. For Starr to change, to dress here, certainly meant that there would be here something more for her to dress in than Lance Marlowe's pajamas. Why? Was it true, then, what people were whispering about her? Why should she have a wardrobe, or any part of it, here? How many times had she stayed here with Lance?

He burst out savagely: "You can keep your accommodations, Marlow. I'll take her home." Lance's thin eyebrows rose. "All in fun, Mike, old chap—Don't get the wind up."

And immediately Michael Fairbourne was conscious of having made a transcendental ass of himself, by being serious when everybody else in the place was ragging. The ripple of amusement grew to a chorus which dimmed in his ears. Michael clenched his fists. Starr was laughing more amiably than any of them.

Michael was plumb and silent as they rode down in the elevator. In silence he helped her into his roadster, got in and jammed down the starter. Starr leaned back against the upholstery and snuggled down comfortably in her seat, but her heart was doing a queer little kind of pounding dance. From the corner of her eyes she glanced toward the clean-cut profile of the man beside her, admiring, in spite of all the will power she could bring to bear on that subject, the cut of his lean, strongly molded, set jaw; his firm, tanned features. Why did he have to be so unreasonably attractive?

"Don't be more of an idiot than you can help," she was telling herself sternly. "This is a business arrangement, and you certainly ought to know it by now."

gathering dusk and the maze of traffic with vicious speed.

For a second Starr closed her eyes. Her delicate cameo profile was so white, except for the too-bright coloring of her defiant young mouth. "And I am making you very rich, Michael-Hassan?"

It was the first time since the night of the debut party that she had mentioned their bargain.

He said stiffly, without moving his gaze from Starr ahead:

"In the last few days the sales of my book have jumped amazingly, thanks to you!"

"Thanks to my complete lack of reticence as regards the public airing of my love affairs, you mean?" she corrected him brazenly.

The line of his hard-gripped jaw was white.

"Start! How can you?"

Her red lips twisted ironically. That certainly was funny, coming from Michael Fairbourne—the man who had been so insistent in saying once: "All I ask is that you keep your name in the headlines—I don't care how."

Well, she had done that for him. The name was becoming as familiar to the reading public as the weather report. In just the short time since she had swept onto the New York horizon like a brilliant meteor, she had blazed her mad, reckless way through highly colorful escapades which could not be ignored—they were news. She had accomplished what she had set out to do, too, as far as herself was concerned. Her metamorphosis was complete. Starr Ellison was lost—she was all "Play-Girl." It had not taken long, and now she was pulling the strings. Men were her puppets.

Michael was saying roughly: "What's happened to you, Starr Ellison? You've grown into something shallow, and unreal, like a lot of vivid color painted on glass!"

"Play-Girl" laughed. She echoed: "Vivid color painted on glass! How clever of you, Michael-Hassan. I must remember to tell that to Lance. He'll think it too divine and pass it around as he has passed that so brilliant remark of mine about my insatiable appetite for bakshish!"

Suddenly his anger got the better of him. His eyes blazed as his hands tightened on the wheel until the knuckles showed white.

"Lance!" he spat out. "Look here, Starr, I never intended for you to carry out this thing this far. What I may have thought about you at first—well, I've changed my mind. . . Do you realize what people are hinting about you?"

And then Starr was angry, too. A deep, bitter anger. The supreme arrogance of the man! She flared: "What right have you to tell me where I shall start, and where I shall leave off? The only interest I keep my name before the public or not—that was distinctly your bargain! I'm doing that—plenty! I'll keep it all as far as I please! It's none of your business! Yes, I know what people are saying—that I am Lance's mistress!"

She turned to meet the full glare of his gray eyes as the speed of the car slackened momentarily. She drawled impudently:

"Well, what do you think?" Michael looked long at the veiled allure of her eyes, at the mocking insolence of her mouth. Then he studied the almost childlike curve of her white teeth against the dark fur, and reflected on the everlasting contradiction of her, as if in very truth she were the siren type of another day which his own press had made her in the eyes of the public.

He said hoarsely: "I don't know. I don't know what to think about you at all in any way. I wish to heaven I did!"

All at once a hot flood of words fell on his ears.

"I know one thing about you! You're not the girl I thought you were when I first found you. . . If I had the faintest idea you were not, I'd never have let you in for this thing in a million years. I thought—well, never mind what. It just wasn't so, and if you'd ever loosen up maybe I'd know just why you were playing La Luna. . . Never mind that, either. What I do mind is now! What's happening to you since you've gone crazy with a little flitting power and adulation. Don't you ever give a thought to your future? Have you considered what will become of you when all this has worn off?"

"I think you warned me once before that 'Play-Girl' would not last forever," said Starr placidly, and her delicate shoulders shrugged. "I'm not worrying."

"You should be! When 'Play-Girl' is finished, when will your faithful friends be then—Lance Marlowe and all the rest? Your

But even as she watched every play of his features, saw the keenness of his gray eyes as they were set on the traffic, in her heart was one dull thought! If only things could be different!

Just looking at him gripped a pain around her heart that had never been there once in her life before she had met him. He was so alive and carelessly masterful and—different. In spite of the way he had acted as far as she was concerned, she could not force it from her mind that he was the only one who, so far, had not allowed "mysterious" "Play-Girl" to twist him around her little finger whenever she chose. And that had been her whole intention.

Michael was still silent—furiously so. He cut his way through the very actions now may forever ruin your chance for any real future happiness!

Unprecedented Flying

American Experiments may Lead To Using Super-Transport Planes

A revolutionary change in air transportation with gigantic liners speeding across the United States thousands of feet above the altitude attained by present commercial planes is presaged by experimental flights at Kansas City, Mo.

The tests are being conducted by Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc. The company is collecting scientific data regarding aeroplane performance, atmospheric conditions and the feasibility of operating schedules at drastically higher altitudes than are now common.

Such knowledge is to be embodied in the construction of a new super-transport plane designed for regular operation on the company's coast-to-coast route.

When completed, such planes are expected to be capable of unprecedented performance at altitudes lofty enough to prevent interference from weather disturbances closer to the earth's surface.

Capt. D. W. Tomlinson piloted a laboratory plane to an altitude of 30,000 feet in 30 minutes in a recent experimental flight. From a temperature of 110 degrees at the airport, Tomlinson reported a precipitate plunge of the mercury until it touched 18 degrees below zero at the peak of his climb.

Tomlinson hopes to reach 45,000 feet. At that height, greater efficiency in performance will be noticeable and additional data will be obtained, he believes.

New trips into the troposphere and stratosphere are planned. Accompanying Tomlinson on the flight is an engineer, who keeps a record of the apparatus being tested for altitude efficiency. Automatic camera equipment photographs the entire instrument panel, and records on film the readings of all instruments at different altitudes.

The laboratory plane is equipped with heating and oxygen apparatus. Tomlinson wears a wire frame mask through which a small tube feeds him oxygen. A small microphone fastened to the mouthpiece of the mask enables him to report his progress from the plane by radio to a ground crew.

Susan R. Anthony, suffrage pioneer whose likeness is to appear on a new U.S. postage stamp, is the second woman so honored. The first was Martha Washington, wife of the first president.

New regular aircraft services of British railways are adding 11,000 miles weekly.

Interfering With Shipments

Spanish War Means Shortage Of Raisins From Valencia

The civil war in Spain is likely to have a disastrous effect on our Christmas puddings. Usually in September the first shipments of raisins are sent from Valencia, but this year most of the crops have been destroyed by the marching armies and only very small supplies of the fruit will be available. It was reported that a small shipment had left Spain, but London importers had no information about it. Even if the fruit is there it will be difficult, for shipping companies will not allow their vessels to enter Spanish ports.—Manchester Guardian.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile flows freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, weak and the world looks pink. A mere bowel movement doesn't always get all the bile out. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to extract two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel like a life flow freely. They do the work of a solvent but leave no solvent in your system. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. If stubbornly refuse to swallow one, etc.

Little Helps For This Week

I will hear what God the Lord will speak; for He will speak peace unto His people. Psalm 85:8.

There is a voice, a still small voice of love, Heard from above; But not amidst the din of earthly sounds; By those withdrawn apart it best is heard, And peace is breathed from every gentle word.

He speaks, but it is with us to hearken or not. It is everything not to turn away the ear, to be willing to hearken, not to drown His voice. "The secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him." It is a secret voice, a still small voice, whispering to the inner ear. How can we hear it if we fill our ears and our hearts with the din of this world, its empty tumult, its excitement and anxieties, and its whirl of emptiness?

Necessity For Defence

Must Take Necessary Steps To Safeguard Our Heritage

"We are living in a fool's paradise if we think we can occupy half a continent, rich in vast resources, with only 10,000,000 people without our requiring sufficient physical protection to safeguard our heritage," Col. Harry S. Hamilton, K.C., Liberal M.P. for Algonia West, told a local service club at Sault Ste. Marie as he urged the necessity of Canada protecting herself in an "expansion mad" world.

Canada needs a better defence policy and Canadian people must be awakened to this necessity, declared Col. Hamilton, first member of the Canadian expeditionary forces to be wounded in the Great War.

Build Planes In Canada

Canadian Car and Foundry Company, Limited, has purchased rights of manufacture in Canada and for sale to any company excluding the United States of the "Grumman" fighter—an aeroplane which is standard on United States aircraft carriers. The company intends to take advantage of the fact that the majority of British and United States aircraft factories are working to capacity.

Obituary

MR. JAMES McNABB

On Monday about 8.30 p. m. there passed peacefully away, a member of one of the pioneer settlers in the person of Mr. James McNabb, of Chinook. He was the eldest son of Mrs. Mary McNabb, and the late Mr. Andrew McNabb who came west in 1909 and settled on a homestead, returning to Ontario in the spring of 1912.

He married Sarah Dunlop daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Neil Dunlop, of Orillia, Ont. There are four children of whom survives they are Jessie of Irricana, Florence, Helen and Blanche at home. Also four brothers Jack of Janaets, Finley of Toronto, Robert of Hamilton, William Hanna and Mrs. Mary-Simpson of Edmonton. He was born in Feb. 1876 at Janaets and was educated at his home town and Orillia. Mr. Langley held prayers at the family residence before removing the body to the church.

The funeral services were conducted at the United Church and graveside by the Rev. H. Whaley of Youngs town.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs Adam Marr, Allan Marr, Geo. Campbell, Fred Edler Jas. Young and Reginald Witt. The beautiful floral tributes were given by relatives and friends.

A large number of pioneers and friends attended. Relatives that attended the funeral were: Mrs. McNabb and family Mr. and Mrs. Brechin and family of Irricana, Mr. C. Sterling of Youngs town, had charge of the funeral.

Mr. C. E. Neff, of Hanna, was a pleasant caller at the Advance Office on Wednesday
